Though small and gentle, young Krishna had great wisdom. In those days, Krishna lived in the village named Vrindavan. Each year, the people made offerings to Indra hoping to soothe his temper. Krishna clearly recognised that Indra was selfish and arrogant, unworthy of respect.

To teach Indra a lesson, Krishna addressed the people. "Indra is a bully we need not serve. Instead, it makes sense to worship Govardhan. Let us honour kind Govardhan, who selflessly shares her lush forests and urges the clouds to shower us." The people approved of Krishna's opinion.

Indra flew into a mighty rage and ordered the clouds to send furious winds and rains to Vrindavan. The storms terrified the people, who fearfully sought help from Krishna. With supreme calm, grace, and power, Krishna lifted Govardhan using only the little finger of his left hand.
